Ninth Fortnightly 1926 Crop Report

Harvest of wheat is proceeding slowly and is about 25 per cent. completed throughout the province. Late rains have held up the ripening process somewhat, and in a few locations have hindered harvesting, but in the main the rains considerably assisted the filling of the grain, especially the late wheat and the coarse grains. The general effect has been good, save in one or two districts where the drought has been severe and where the grain is too far gone to recover. The districts thus affected, as has been previously stated, are very limited in extent. It may be safely stated that the rains which have come during the first two weeks of August will have the effect of adding considerably to the yield of wheat, and of causing recovery of much oats and barley which were making a poor showing.

There has been no frost to speak of, and the damage from hail has not been heavy this year. The saw fly is reported active in one or two localities, but damage is not extensive. A slight appearance of rust is reported from one district.

The weather remains cool and showery. The rains have been fairly general over the province during the past fortnight, being somewhat heavier in the central and southern portions.

The labor situation is well in hand and a sufficient supply of harvest hands is assured.

Are You Taking Down Your Sign?

Have you ever put it up? Persistent and consistent advertising in one form or another, is one of the fundamental conditions of success in business. John Wanamaker, who built up one of the most successful mercantile houses in the world wrote: "Continuous advertising, like continuous work, is most effective. . . . To discontinue your advertisement is the same thing as taking down your sign." And one of the cheapest and most effective means of advertising is through the columns of your local paper. Put your sign up and keep it up.

Learning About Alberta

Request for full information concerning Alberta, with suitable illustrations, has been received by the provincial publicity bureau from the California council of education, which is revising its geographical text book, and wishes to include a generous reference to Alberta. This is one of many indications received recently that greater attention is being paid to securing information about the Canadian west than ever before, by the people across the line.

Prepare for Annual Roads Convention

The Canadian good roads association will hold its annual convention in Edmonton this year on September 28-30. It is expected that some 700 delegates will be present and that full advantage will be taken of the occasion by the eastern visitors to see Alberta.

'Mountie', A Husky Veteran of the Trail

VISITORS to the Chateau Frontenac at Quebec and especially those who patronize the Winter Carnival there in February have a treat in store for them—that of driving behind a real northern dog-team, led by one of the greatest huskies "in the business." Mountie, the latest acquisition to the team. In November it was found necessary to secure a new leader for the Chateau Frontenac huskies. It was decided that none but the very best available would do. Wires and letters were sent broadcast throughout the Canadian sub-Arctic to Edmonton, Le Pas, Fort McMurray, and Peace River; in fact, to every point where a husky of suitable standard might be secured. It was only after a three weeks' search by many authorities on huskies that Mountie was eventually secured at Le Pas, Manitoba, the price paid greatly exceeding the usually given.

It was a real stroke of luck which secured this splendid animal, for he is a veteran of the northern trails and, more than that, as his name implies, has done practically all his service with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Hailing originally from Lac-du-Fort, in the far North, he was bought by Sergeant Greenman of that famous force in 1919, when very young. His training was carried out by the Sergeant and so well did he acquire himself later that the Mounted Police wrote of him: "He has never missed a patrol or been a day off duty since we have had him."

So he is a real Policeman and no mere movie hero, co-worker for years with the comrades of such men as Dempster, Fitzgerald and other heroic trail-makers of Canada's glorious corps, a comrade grown old in battling through snow and storm on the King's business for the maintenance of the right.

Mountie, as one of the finest huskies ever kept on the books of the Police, is a magnificent-looking fellow, a dark grey giant with shining, slit eyes, pointed ears and mauls, thick fur and gleaming fangs. There is about him more than a breath of the lean, romance-laden Arctic winds and one is not surprised to learn from the Mounted Police that "he has always been admired wherever he has been, both from appearance and capabilities."

The work at the Chateau Frontenac will be puppy's play to Mountie after the desperate toil he has known in the far North. But he deserves well of the people of Canada and has nobly earned his rest and the comfort he will henceforth enjoy.

A Matter of National Concern

Canada unquestionably derives many advantages from its close proximity to the United States with its large population, its numerous industries, and its great wealth. Many of these advantages are so self-evident that it would be a waste of time to even enumerate them. But, on the other hand, it is equally true that Canada suffers as a result of the very close and intimate relations which exist between the Dominion and its big neighbor to the south. These advantages and disadvantages are very largely confined to the realm of economics.

The subject is so large that volumes could be written on it, pro and con. Among the many phases or angles of the complex questions involved in this very large problem, there is one which is now the matter of considerable discussion in Canada, because, while it is economic in its origin, it contains within itself possibilities affecting the whole social, industrial and political life of this country.

In a sparsely settled, largely undeveloped country like Canada, with people spread thinly over half a continent, and with some sections having little in common, except sentimentally, with other sections, there is naturally lack of community of interest, and resultant national spirit and consciousness, which animates smaller and more thickly populated countries. There is difficulty in the far eastern and far western provinces knowing and understanding each other, while these far-flung sections are not even in very close touch and sympathy with the central provinces, which latter are more or less self-contained and self-sufficient and lack understanding of both the east and west.

Halifax and St. John are closer to Boston and New York than they are to Montreal or Toronto; Montreal and Toronto are closer to New York, Philadelphia and Chicago than they are to Winnipeg; Winnipeg is closer to Chicago and Minneapolis than to Vancouver or Victoria; Vancouver is closer to Seattle, Portland and San Francisco than to Canadian centres. Such is the geographical position which nothing can overcome.

One of the most effective means whereby Canadians could be made to know and understand each other better, and brought closer together, is through the medium of national publications, weekly and monthly magazines and periodicals. Valiant efforts have been put forth by public-spirited men and women to provide such media, but with indifferent success, considering there are nine million people in Canada. The reason for failure is not far to seek.

With a population twelve times that of Canada, United States publishers can develop enormously large circulations for their magazines. As a result they can command fabulous prices for advertising from the large and wealthy national manufacturers. With enormous revenues under their control, these publishers can command the services of the world's best writers, artists and illustrators. The result is they can turn out the most attractive magazine, and of a class and at a price which Canadian publishers in their more limited field cannot begin to approach. And, as Canadians desire the very best obtainable in magazines, as in everything else, these United States publications have large circulations in Canada than our own Canadian publications.

What will be the ultimate effect of this flooding of Canadian homes with United States publications? This is a question causing much concern not only to many Canadians but to thoughtful students of affairs throughout the Empire and in other countries. Canadians are being constantly supplied with the narrow United States viewpoint on all international questions which these magazines present as seen through Uncle Sam's spectacles and as they affect the big republic. Canada is a member and loyal supporter of the League of Nations, yet our people are supplied daily, weekly, monthly, with open and veiled criticism and denunciations of the League. The United States' viewpoint is viewed as the only right one, and all others wrong. We are fed upon the open disregard for law which prevails throughout the United States; we have been used to us the practical breakdown of the marriage tie and decent domestic relations which characterizes the social life of the United States today; we are inundated with stories of the coming bankruptcy of Great Britain and the breaking-up of the British Empire; and so on and ad nauseam.

What will be the effect on the social life and political institutions of Canada, if this keeps up for another generation or two? Is there any remedy that can be applied?

Canadian publishers believe that at least a partial remedy is possible, but that it must be applied in an economic way; that is, the remedy is not to be found in the arbitrary exclusion of United States magazines, but in providing a means whereby Canadian publishers will be given a reasonable chance to compete successfully with them through the production of Canadian periodicals more or less on a par from the standpoint of literary and artistic production with those from across the line.

As the subject is one which concerns all Canadians, it is proposed to examine further into the subject in a subsequent article.

Immigration Rush Begins

The week of March 15 saw the real opening of the spring rush of immigrants to Western Canada, when the Canadian National Railways transported during the week approximately 1,500 new citizens from the seaboard to Winnipeg by special and regular trains and thence to their final destinations on prairie farms and in British Columbia.

Demand For Farm Lands

The lumber dealers at Winnipeg report an increased demand for farm lands, and half-section transactions with one-third cash as first payment are more numerous this spring than for many years. Some of the buyers are farmers desirous of extending their holdings, but many of them are Old Country people and newcomers from across the line.

Dominion Revenue Increasing

Figures Show Considerable Gain Over Preceding Year

Ordinary revenue of the Dominion increased by nearly twenty-one millions during the eleven months ended February 28 last, as compared with the previous eleven-month period. The monthly statement issued by the department of finance shows total ordinary revenue for the eleven months of $237,558,410 as compared with $216,934,207 for the previous corresponding period. Ordinary expenditure "at about the same as a year ago. On February 28 last it totalled $276,629,417.

Decrease in Railway Accidents

Number of Fatalities Through Accidents in Also Less

A considerable decrease in the number of railway accidents and in the number of fatalities is shown in the annual of the Dominion railway board for the calendar year, 1925. During these 12 months there were 2,713 accidents on Canadian railways, in which 272 persons were killed and 2,955 persons injured, as compared with 2,834 accidents in the previous year when 315 persons were killed and 3,254 persons injured. Classifying these casualties, there were six killed in 1925 as against 17 in 1924; 76 employees killed, as against 107; and 190 others killed, as against 194. Crossings protected by some means accounted for 76 killed in 1925 and unprotected crossings took a toll of 294 killed and 1,161 injured.

During 1925, there were 883 fires originating within 300 feet of the railway lines, and these fires burned over 57,430 acres, destroying forest property valued at $219,558 and other property valued at $77,629. There were 26 public buildings of the board last year.

Poland's New Sea Port

Gdynia Will Be Strictly Up-to-Date in Three Years

On good recent maps, writes a correspondent of the London Spectator, the name Gdynia will be seen, a few miles northwest of the Free City of Danzig but still within the frontage on the Baltic given to Poland by the Treaty of Versailles. It is a tiny fishing hamlet of about 200 souls, not German but Slavic. Poles of the Gdynia tribe. The Poles, called it Gdynia and in July 1924 contracts for the construction of a new port there were made with a powerful Franco-Polish group. By 1920 Gdynia type with an annual handling capacity of two and a half million tons, equal to the present capacity of Danzig. It is backed by a level plain on which a town of 3,000 people has already sprung up. The correspondent asked what about Danzig if Gdynia succeeds and the Poles replied "It will not be long before we shall be able to make full use of both Danzig and Gdynia."

Vodka In Russia

Demand For National Drink Is Increasing According to Government Report

Russia is developing an insatiable thirst for vodka. Although the government within the last six months has more than doubled its output of vodka, it has been unable to meet the demand for the national drink.

According to figures announced, the government will produce 550,000,000 quarts of vodka during the coming year, which will yield the state about $210,000,000 in revenue, or ten per cent. of the entire budget.

It's a good thing for humanity that some people are not as big as they think they are—the world would be overcrowded.

A Remarkable Operation

Vienna Surgeon Saves Woman's Life By Stitching Wound In Heart

It was announced that Dr. Nather, a young house surgeon in the Elisabeth clinic here, has saved the life of a woman of 25 by stitching two wounds in her heart after she had been stabbed by a drunken man.

Through the prompt action of the police Dr. Nather was able to operate on her 20 minutes after the crime. He sawed through three ribs, exposed the heart, located the injuries and made the necessary repairs.

Blood was afterwards transfused and during the following days there were several injections of chloride of sodium (common salt) into her veins. She is now quite healthy and has been brought by Dr. Nather before the medical association.

NEW BLOOD NEEDED IN THE SPRING TIME

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills As a Blood Improving, Health-Restoring Tonic

Every man, woman and child needs new, rich, red blood at this time of the year. That is a scientific fact. All doctors know it. The blood grows thin and poor in the winter; there is not enough of it, and spring shows the effect. Take notice and see how many people are pale and shiver at this time of the year. They complain of being easily tired, their appetite is poor, and they are often depressed by low spirits in general. Mother Nature urging them to improve their blood supply; but often their digestion is weakened so that they cannot turn food into blood with help. Here is where modern medicine comes to the rescue. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a direct action on the blood and enable you to get full use of the blood which is sent to your system. You soon feel their effect—your appetite improves, your nerves are steadier, color returns to the cheeks and lips, you have more vigor and energy and can work with less fatigue.

No value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are in what is known as a run-down condition of health is proved by the experience of Mr. Alex. McKenzie, St. Louis, Mo., who says:—"I was in a completely run-down condition, nervous, sleepless, and loss of vitality were all taking their toll. I felt miserable all the time and was so fatigued that my case was hopeless, as I had taken a number of remedies with little or no relief. I had often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and finally decided to try them. I got a half dozen boxes and the first I had taken about half of them, there was no doubt I had at last found the medicine I needed to restore my health. I continued the use of the pills, taking strength day by day, until I was soon enjoying good health and happy. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every man, woman or child who is in a run-down condition, and who feels that he will soon restore them to health and strength."

Whether you are seriously ill or merely feel easily tired and out-of-sorts, you should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring. They are sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canadians see visions and dream dreams of a good time coming when the $60,000,000 that go out of Canada for the purchase of coal in the state of Pennsylvania shall be kept in Canada. ### Worried Over Baggage Decrease

Light Luggage Causes Stump in Revenue For European Railroads

European carriers and railway companies are clamoring for an increase in rates to make up the deficit caused by the lightness of the luggage of female travellers. Men used to be called the "suit case men," but women have gone one better. They are now the "lithium men."

Saratoga trunks, which used to be a gold mine for express companies and European railway lines, are no more. Mildly's wardrobe has become so slight that she can put her entire wardrobe and summer outfit into a satchel, which she carries in her compartment with her.

Most European lines have a sixty-pound limit on baggage, which may be checked free. Consequently transportation lines are almost as hard hit as the express companies and druggists by the brevity of skirts and lack of lingerie.

Forbidden Newspapers

Frenchmen and Italians Bootlegging Hostile Publications Across Border into Italy

Ram runners in North America have their counterpart in bands of Frenchmen and Italians who carry into Italy copies of anti-Fascist newspapers printed abroad and forbidden entrance into Italy. The Corsiere Dugale Italian, published in Paris, is notable among the "bootleg" journals.

Many thousands of these newspapers are being taken into Italy and circulated, despite the general decree against them. In addition to those carried across the border, many of the clandestine ones are sent directly in sealed wrappers, frequently bearing misleading senders' addresses.

Stomach Troubles

Numerous Causes Responsible For Serious Disorders, Often Fatal

Though it is true the majority of people know that errors in their diet result in personally unpleasant consequences, comparatively few are aware of the fact that numerous other causes are responsible for serious and often fatal disturbances of the organs of digestion. An unduly taxed brain, excessive mental exertion, overwork, internal damage than will, an overloaded stomach. But, be the cause what it may, simply put, it is the direct result of disorganization of the functions of digestion. Costly and radical operations have demonstrated that drugs generally administered in treating stomach troubles are only a temporary relief and for this reason, are disadvantageous to the public. Certain roots and herbs indigenous to tropical climates, however, have proved equal to ridding the long-forgotten want of not only relieving pain, but actually restoring the balance of the digestive system. It is hoped that a sufficiency of such material may be secured to enable completely relieve Canadian sufferers, information concerning these tropical medicines can be obtained by applying to Mr. V. Edwards, 1141 Yonge St., Toronto 5, Canada.

Through Service For Steamship Passengers

Canadian Pacific Railway Inaugurates Through Tourist Sleeping Car Service

For the convenience of western passengers enroute to the Old Country, the Canadian Pacific Railway has inaugurated a through tourist sleeping car service from Winnipeg to Saint John, N.B.

These cars will leave Winnipeg on "The Imperial" at 10:00 a.m. every Tuesday until April 26th, providing through service to the ship's side at Saint John.

This service will prove extremely popular with passengers from the prairie provinces, eliminating as it does, changing trains at Montreal.

Britain Will Meet Obligations

Payments in 1926 to United States Will Total $160,000,000

Right Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the exchequer, told a gas-dinner in the House of Commons that Great Britain's net payments to the United States on account of her debt would amount to $1,620,000,000 (about $160,000,000) principal and interest during 1926, assuming sterling at par value. Against this, he said, Great Britain would receive approximately $214,000,000 (about $25,000,000) from German reparations and payments on the allied war debts already funded. Mr. Churchill added that negotiations were proceeding for settlement of the remaining allied war debts.

Dishonesty Common In Russia

Scores of Guilty Officials Are Sentenced To Imprisonment

Embezzlements amounting to $5,000,000 occurred in the Soviet cooperative societies during the last year, said the director of the All-Russian Central Union of Cooperative Organizations. More than 13,000 officials connected with these bodies will be tried. Similar irregularities are reported in the trade union organizations. Embezzlement of funds, corruption and frauds generally are alarmingly prevalent. Scores of guilty officials already have been sentenced to long terms of imprisonment.

What's Wrong With Canada

Here Are Some Facts For The Croakers To Study

Canada, with her 9,600,000 people, has as much foreign trade as the United States had when she had 76,000,000 people, according to its recent statistics. In addition, the Dominion is mining as much as the United States did with 33,000,000 people, and manufacturing as much as the United States did with 50,000,000 people. The Canadian per capita export trade today amounts to $124, while in the United States it is only $37.

THE STORY THIS FAR

Joanna, pretty, modern, sharp girl in the world, has never known anything but poverty and a desire for the luxuries of life. Her lips are lifted red, her hair bobbed, her dress short, but her heart is clean with all of her fopperies. She is summoned into the august presence of Graydon, her employer. She is expecting to be dismissed.

CHAPTER II

Into the Kingdom of Money

For a long time Graydon silently looked down upon the girl who had swayed into the chair. She, too, was silent, motionless. The letter he had given her with the small, leather bound book, shook in her hand. She held it before her, an arm resting across her knees. Her eyes stared at the typed lines. Now and again the closed lid lightly shook her head over so little, and parted her lids again, as if the words on the paper blurred before the fascination of her gaze and she had straightened them out by shaking the confusion out of her brain.

Once she let her hand droop, and kept her eyes closed for what might have been half a minute. Then, with a suddenness that seemed as if she were clutching at a shadow that she didn't want to fade, she brought the paper closer and read each line again. In frantic haste she did, and watched her face grow the wrath of something very tender, and ineffable, her head shook by lips. Out of the eccentric pattern of the exaggerated type she represented, the excessively exclusive "daughter of today," a new shape emerged. For the moment he forgot the maelstrom that surged outside his office doors—the handmaiden bargaining in the great lavish floors of the department store. The girl who was one of those who bargained, bargained with her wit against the purses of housewives; bargained the shimmer of her hair and the brown of her eyes and the curves of her lips against the world of which the crowds out there were a symbol, became a flower, a delicate, exquisite blossom that some irrelevant business trader had palmed into a faded state of fobs.

"Tell me," she pleaded, "What is it they're doing to me?"

The "Old Man," forgetting for the moment the fluctuations in the price of Manchester cotton and the season's demand for Highland plaids, pictured her as a rhododendron suddenly bewildered by a beam of sunlight breaking through a mist.

And then Joanna looked up at him. Doubts and confusion had gone from her face. It was lit with the taunting smile of one who had solved a riddle. "Somebody needs a doctor!"

"Who's crazy, you or I?" Graydon shook his head. "It's all very real, Joanna. You came in to me a while ago, a little lady of very small estate. When you go out again, you will be a veritable princess in a kingdom of money."

Joanna crumpled back in her chair. She brushed her forehead with the back of a hand.

"Please, Mr. Graydon," she pleaded. "Don't make a fool of me."

The earnestness, the seriousness of the man who confronted her puzzled her, and sent her frowning for other words. He pointed to the paper she still held in her hand.

"And I told you," he said. "Perhaps the sound of it will help you."

After she had murmured her persistent doubt. "It says it's from a bank!" she obeyed him, mechanically. "And it says," she began. "We have the good fortune to notify you that there has been placed on deposit with this institution, to your credit, the sum of One Million Dollars, in cash and securities, subject to your personal check and at such other disposition as you may wish to make of these funds. "We beg to say here, that this deposit has been made by a patron of this institution who has not confided to us the source of your funds nor the motives which have assembled them for you. We have not considered it necessary to enquire into these matters, because of the identity of the depositor, nor as to his reasons for the injunction upon us to not disclose his identity to you."

The girl faltered, and looked again at Graydon, who was watching her intently. The frown still wrinkled in her brow. Her eyes still gaped. "You see," she argued desperately, "I told you—somebody's loan that ought to be in a hospital!"

Graydon pointed to the paper she held in her trembling fingers. She read for him the closing paragraph:

"We are sending you, through your employer your bank book with an entry of your account. We are given to understand that Mr. Graydon will supply certain remarks included above. We trust."

Her voice dropped off through the perfunctory assurances of advice and assistance. When she raised her eyes Graydon had dropped into his chair, across the table from her. She looked at him blankly.

Graydon spoke deliberately, choosing his words, as if conscious of his need to penetrate the understanding of the girl whose mind struggled against a portent that overwhelmed her.

"You may accept each sentence with complete confidence," he said. "The money is there, ready for you. Downstairs, at the curb, my own car is waiting to take you, and your bank book, to the bank. There you will sign your name, just a scratch of the pen, and the rest—"

He paused, and his fingers again played with the jade paper weight, in that slight pause Joanna—the Joanna whose philosophies were fruits of many windmills—thought she saw the thing that, for the time had been driven from her thoughts.

"She was right, after all! Only, it hadn't come in the way she expected. A pretty little play, with all its elaborate stage setting! A million dollars! A new bit of gesture made by some idiot who thought she would be 'wise' in time. A million dollars; then, the rest!" And then the pompous gift of money recalled as laughingly as it had been critically ridiculous!

Joanna dropped the letter to the floor and rose. Her lips set into a line that was out of place against their pensive contours.

"Now you're getting at it, Mr. Graydon," she exclaimed. "I thought there'd be a catch in it. What's the rest?"

The man only shook his head, rather sadly, as if he suffered a little before the spectacle of a girl, fresh and young and lovely, who must ever be on the alert for "the catch in it."

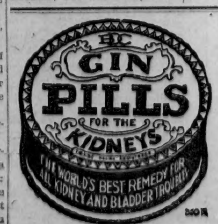

"It's the obligations," he said, still shaping his words slowly. "The stupendous gift of yours without conditions. Is that the word you would have me use; conditions?"

Before this baffled Joanna again was speechless. Graydon went on: "You may not even ask a question. In ten minutes, now, he asked of you. It is possible that you shall never know the name of your benefactor. I know his reasons. I know the motives. But I may not reveal them to you. I may only say, and I hope you will have a little trust in me—that you need have no trouble and that there is nothing unpleasant about your mystery."

Joanna sank to her chair. "You mean," she perished. "You mean that someone—someone I don't even know—has made me rich and that I don't have to—that he won't ask me—?" She could not go on. All her reasonings, her wisdoms, her safeguards were beaten away as if they were futile things. She heard Graydon say what still maddened her because of the puzzle in it; because it left her helpless.

"You will not be asked to give anything!"

The office door opened. Graydon had touched his buzzer and the secretary entered—the strangely soft mannered, unobtrusive girl in whom Joanna had first seen utter unassumingness, but who had caused her to wonder, after a bit, if her own lips were a little too sweet.

On the girl's arm was Joanna's wrap and in her hand was Joanna's hat. It was the same far wrap Joanna had thought to be in dreadful risk of the pawnshop when Graydon summoned her from the milk counter, registered her dissent for some unknown of fence. The hat was the one still unpaid for.

Was A Mild Winter

Western Canada Experienced Mildest Winter in 48 Years

Western Canada has just passed through the mildest winter that this part of the Dominion has experienced in 48 years, according to records supplied by the meteorological office. Every important post registered much higher average temperatures than normal. At Dawson City the mean temperature was 15 degrees above normal for the three winter months of December, January and February; at Edmonton, 8 degrees above normal; at Calgary, 14 above normal; Moose Jaw, 13 above normal, and at Winnipeg, 8 above normal. Dawson, for the month of January, showed 30 degrees milder than normal.

In Alberta the milder temperature averaged pretty well over the whole winter. Calgary had only two days of blow zero weather. The winter of 1877-78, however, still holds the record and was much milder than last winter.

The seasonal temperatures for December, January and February last at the five representative stations and the normal temperatures follow:

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

Can Best Be Guarded With Baby's Own Tablets

The spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which attack the whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation, or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Still Use Snuff

Figures Show That Quite a Number Of People in Canada Take Pinch of Snuff

Quite a number of people in Canada still take their pinch of snuff. Tobacco factories in Canada in 1924, the last year of record, produced 3947,593 worth of snuff, or 74,525 pounds. A statement issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics shows that in the same year 2,459,147,000 cigarettes were rolled in Canadian factories. They are valued at $26,455,986. The output of cigars was $18,875,900 or $9, 735,490 worth.

The output of smoking tobaccos in that year is valued at $17,394,493, and of chewing tobacco at $5,568,284. The total value of the output of Canada's tobacco factories in 1924 is estimated at $55,342,562, of which $34, 466,596 came from Quebec factories. The balance is distributed over the rest of the provinces in very small sums.

Will Test Speediest Plane
England Claims to Have Fastest Fighter Ever Constructed

An aeroplane, which is claimed to be the fastest fighter yet constructed in England, is shortly to undergo its tests—probably at the hands of Mr. Bert Hinkler.

The "Flying Bullet," as it has been called, has been designed and constructed primarily by A. V. Roe. It is fitted with a direct drive Napier Lion engine, and has a speed when carrying the full military load of between 170 and 180 miles an hour.

It has been built in London, but the tests will probably be carried out at a remote flying ground on the southeast coast. So far the air ministry have had no part in the development of this machine, but it is likely, if the preliminary trials are successful, that it will be offered to the ministry.

Not Controlled By Clocks

Some Countries Have Different Methods to Measure Time

We set our watches an hour ahead to accommodate ourselves to daylight changes, but our movements are still dictated by the clock. This reminds us that there are many people who are not so controlled. In Holland canal men measure the distances they travel by the number of pipes they smoke enroute. Peasants in the Rhine provinces frequently measure the time required for boiling an egg by repeating the Lord's Prayer, while the Dutch equivalent for our mile is used to indicate the distance the average man can travel without taking a rest.

Hunting Snails With Planes

Aeroplane will be employed soon by the Soviet Government in hunting snails on the Arctic coast. Heretofore schooners have been used, but results were not satisfactory, boats often spending whole weeks without making a "catch."

Butterfield Memorials

Back from Europe after a two months' trip in connection with battle memorials, Col. H. C. Osborn of the war graves commission, told of progress that has been made on the eight sites allotted to Canada as places where Canadians took an important part in battles in France and Belgium. Work on seven of these will be completed this summer. On the eighth site at Vimy Ridge, excellent progress also is being made.

Mrs. Dayman Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the Credit

Colborne, Ontario.—"When I was first married I was very thin and weak. The doctor said I was weak and would never be able to have a child, but I did, and from that time my baby came I suffered all the time and doctor and took medicine. Life became a burden, and doctor said an operation could help me, but my husband was opposed to that. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine advertised, so I told my husband that I thought I would try it, that I might get some relief.

I had not taken one bottle when I could feel it helping me. I took five bottles and had better health. Now I have three girls and a boy and have done my work up to confinement. I am now at the Change of Life and my good health is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I take a bottle when I think I need it."
